Historical Notes

The Present Status of the Association

The Newark Museum Association was formed in April, 1909, "to establish in the City of Newark, New Jersey, a museum for the reception and exhibition of articles of art, science, history and technology, and for the encouragement of the study of the arts and sciences."

The Association was chartered with fifty Trustees as members. It received from the city $10,000 with which was purchased the Rockwell Collection of oriental art objects. In 1911 the city again appropriated $10,000 to the support of the Museum. With this money, with membership dues which have amounted to about $11,000 and with gifts, the Association has purchased fifty-two exhibition cases of the most approved modern construction, nine paintings, some examples of the best American potteries, medals by American and French sculptors, and a few bronzes; has held eight temporary exhibitions; has secured an exhibition of modern German applied arts which is to be sent to this country, shown in Newark, and then in the museums of other American cities; has acquired the Disbrow collections of geological and other scientific specimens, for which it will install new cases; and has maintained an office in the Public Library building, employing the services of an assistant secretary with some clerical assistance. The Museum now

The Association now publishes its third Annual Report. The second Annual Report, 1910-11 contains officers, committees, charter members and trustees, terms of office of elective trustees, certificate of incorporation, by-laws and historical notes. The Association issues occasionally a Bulletin dealing with the history and work of the Association, exhibitions, and matters of interest. These publications are sent to members and to others on application.

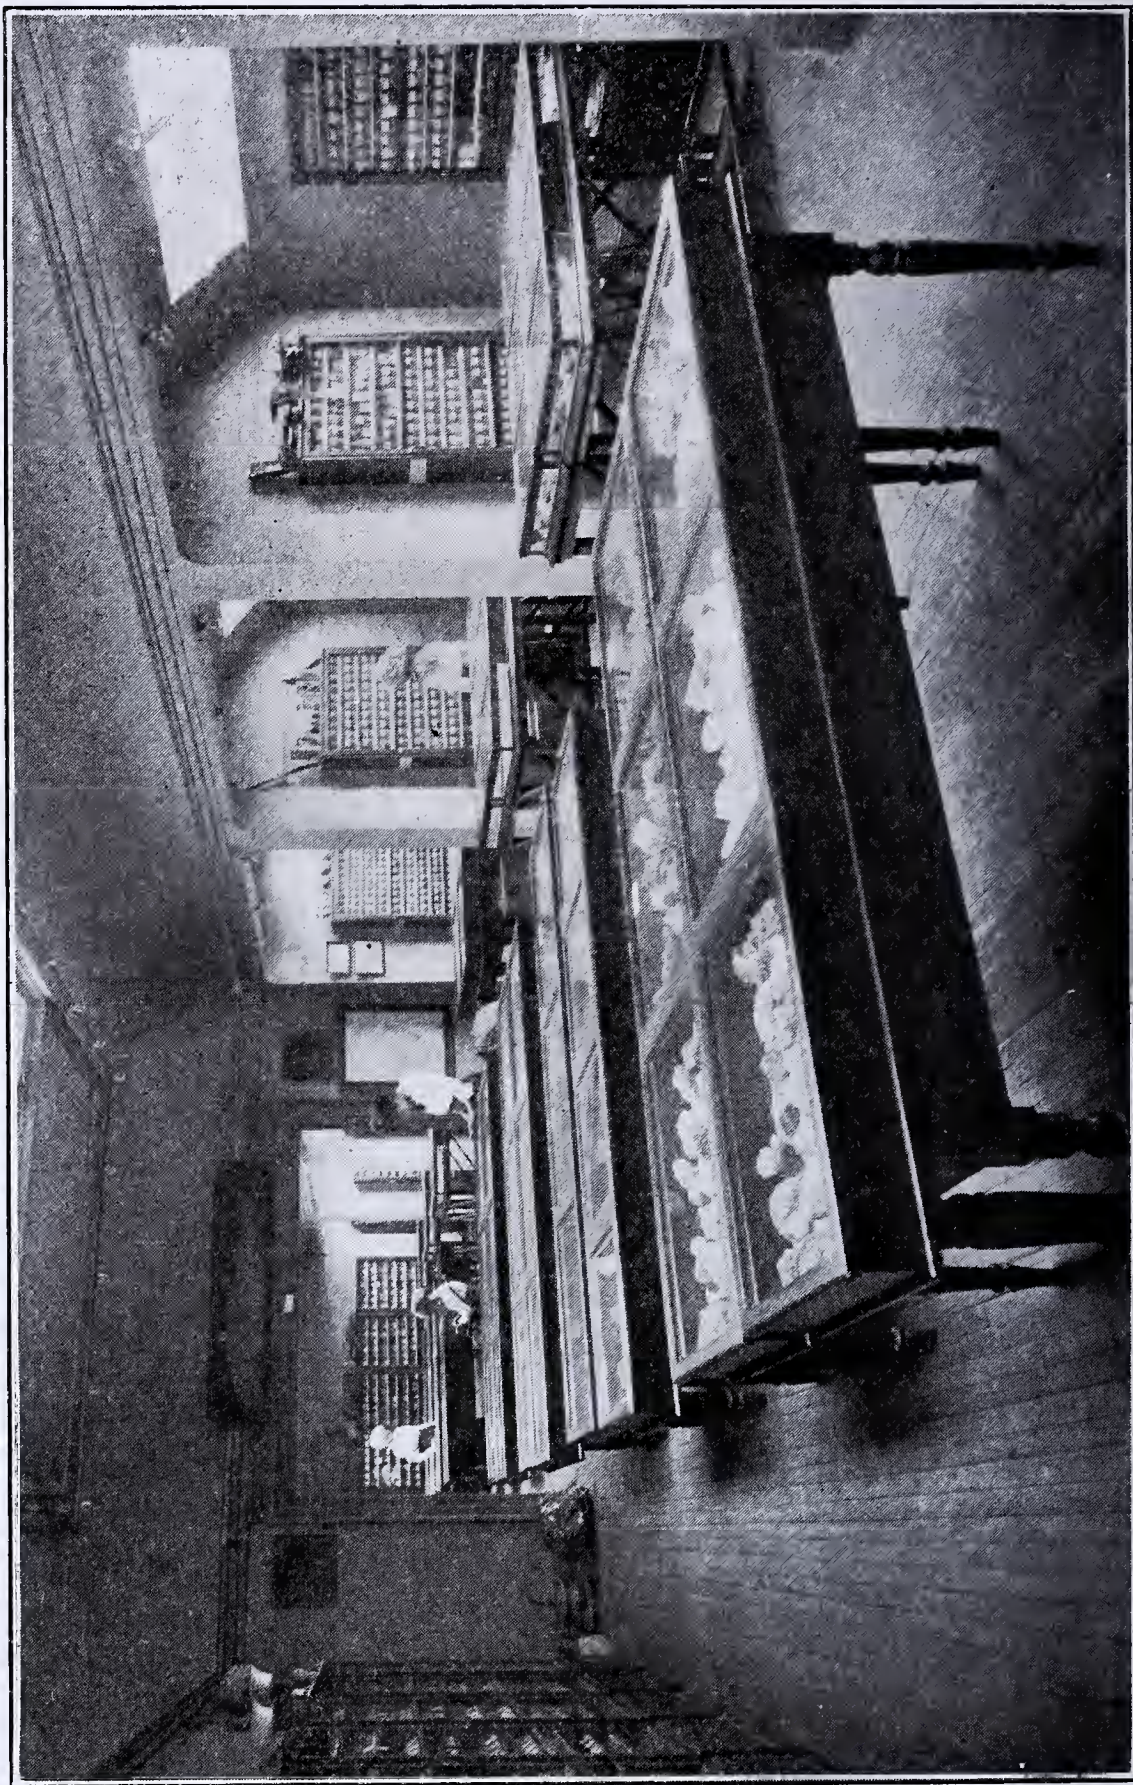

The Association now has 278 members as follows:

Members in Perpetuity	$1000.	3
Life Members	100.	50
Sustaining Members.....	25.	6
Annual members	5.	213
Honorary		1
Ex officio		5
Total		278

All residents of Newark, both men and women who are interested in establishing a Museum in the City of Newark are cordially invited to become members of the Association. The dues for annual members were placed at the small sum of $5 in the expectation that many would join and thus not only increase the yearly income, but also—and this is the more important—increase the interest of the general public in what is sure to become one of the most important, dignified and influential of all the city’s educational institutions.

The Art Gallery (K) showing a portion of the exhibition of Applied Arts of Germany. This room is used for temporary exhibitions of paintings, also for the display of objects from the Museum's permanent collections. Beyond the columns (H) hang paintings, the property of the Museum.

The Science Museum (A-B,) the Disbrow collections of applied and historical geology and economic botany.

Report of the Board of Trustees to the Association at the Annual Meeting
April 30, 1912

The Treasurer reports that for the past year the receipts have been $14,555.66, the disbursements $7,381.74, leaving a balance on hand of $7,173.92.

The Committee on Membership reports an active membership of 272, also one honorary and five ex officio members. The membership is divided into classes as follows: annual members, 213; life members, 50; sustaining members, 6; members in perpetuity, 3.

The Committee on Purchases and Donations reports several valuable acquisitions to the Museum collections during the year. The most important of these is the Disbrow Science Collection given to the Free Public Library by Dr. William S. Disbrow in 1908 and now by mutual agreement the property of the Newark Museum Association. The collection includes about 5000 specimens of mineralogy, geology, building stones, etc. and about 1000 specimens in the field of economic botany, classified, labeled and installed in cases.

Another notable gift is the Edward N. Crane Memorial Collection of articles from Tibet, given by Mrs. Edward N. Crane and Mr. Arthur M. Crane in memory of Edward N. Crane, a former Trustee. This collection was gathered by Dr. Alfred L. Shelton, a medical missionary, resident in Eastern Tibet, and consists of valuable paintings, books, objects of religious ceremony, clothing, weapons and household articles, to the number of about 150.

Silver trimmed, copper tea pot and brass wine bottle from Tibet, China. From the Edward N. Crane Memorial Collection.

Other gifts are:

Painting, Coast of Maine, by Frederick J. Waugh, from William T. Evans, Montclair.

Painting, from Mrs. Frank B. Adams.

Chinese temple bell of bronze, and Japanese prints from Joseph S. Isidor.

Gold watches from Dr. Archibald Mercer.

Chinese Fo dog and stone Buddhas, from Harry B. Fowler.

The most important loans to the Museum for the year have been:

Rookwood pottery, a collection of 40 pieces, now on exhibition with the American pottery owned by the Museum. Lent by the Rookwood Pottery.

Medals designed by American Artists. A permanent loan, made and lent by the Whitehead and Hoag Company.

Objects illustrating village life in India, now on exhibition. Collected and lent by George W. Hawkes of Newark.

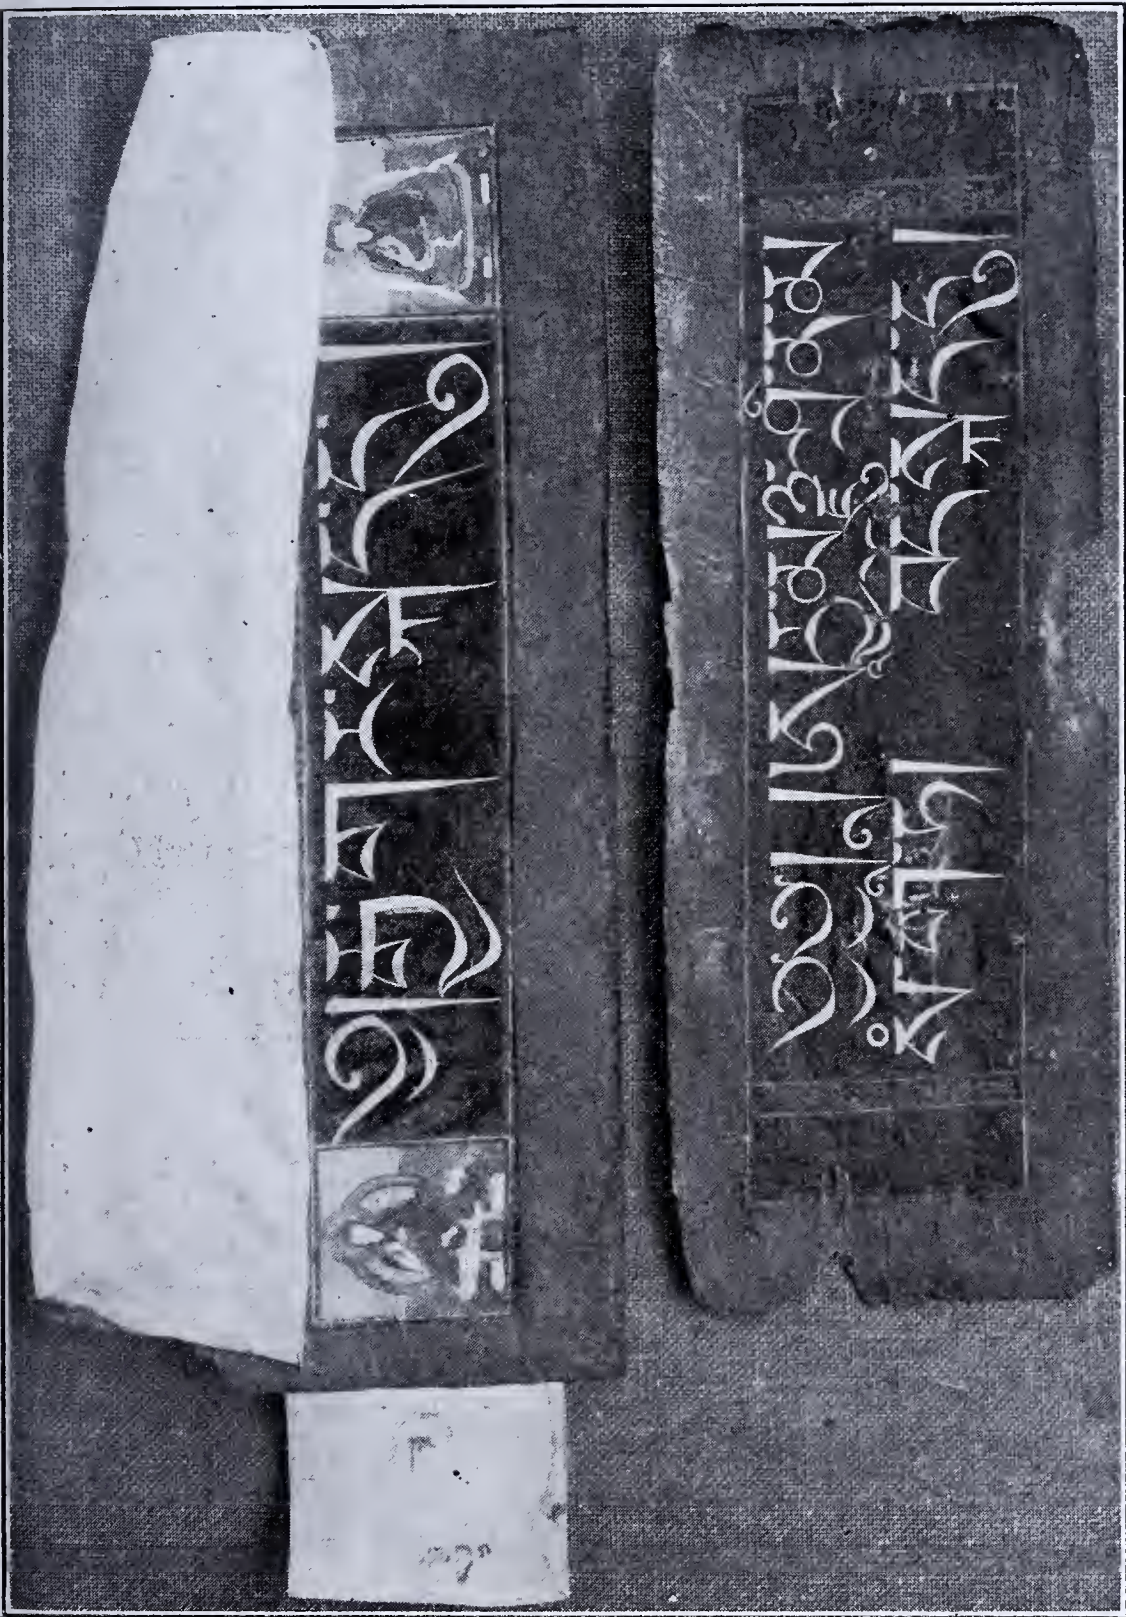

At a meeting of the Trustees held on April 16, the Disbrow Collection was formally accepted. In recognition of the service which Dr. Disbrow rendered in making this collection available to the people of Newark, it was unanimously voted that Dr. Disbrow be made an honorary member of the Association. At this meeting it was also voted that Mrs. Edward N. Crane and Mr. Arthur M. Crane, who have given the Museum a collection of valuable paintings, books and other objects of interest from Tibet, China, known as the Edward N. Crane Memorial Collection, be made honorary members of the Association.

During the year 30 exhibition cases have been purchased for $3,690. The purchase of these cases makes it possible for the Museum to show in the most approved manner any exhibitions which it may be able to secure. The setting of the German Exhibition, which has been greatly admired, is due in a great measure to the installation of the objects in cases especially designed for museum uses.

The Museum rooms have been kept open daily, 12, 6.30, 7.30-9.30; Sundays and Holidays, 2-6, 7.30-9. The total attendance for the year, April 1, 1911 to April 1, 1912 has been 27,522. Of the total attendance, 1908 persons visited the Exhibition of the Art of Photography, April 5 to May 4; 2475 the Childe Hassam Exhibit, Nov. 8 to Nov. 30, 1911, and to date 3,579 have visited the German Applied Arts Exhibit. (The total number of visitors at the German exhibit, March 14-April 25, was 7,694.) On March 14, 1912 the Museum exhibits were opened in their new quarters on the fourth floor, two rooms and corridors containing the German Applied Arts Exhibit, the Disbrow Science Collections in the south room. Since the exhibits were opened on the fourth floor the daily average attendance has been 175; the average Sunday attendance, 171.

The German Applied Arts Exhibition has been the most notable undertaking of the Museum for the year. At the request of the Newark Museum the exhibition was prepared for this Museum by Mr. Karl E. Osthaus, Director of the German Museum of Applied Arts in Hagen, Westphalia, and included examples of the work of the best artists of to-day of Germany and Austria in metals, jewelry, pottery, glass, wood, ivory, wallpaper, linoleum, textiles, posters, engravings and other examples of the graphic arts. The press notices

Two leaves from a volume of Tibetan scriptures. This volume is one of a set of fourteen containing the sayings of Buddha without comment. The illuminations are in brilliant colors, the letters in gold and silver. From the Edward N. Crane Memorial Collection.

Exhibition of Modern German Applied Arts. East end of the smaller of the two rooms in which the exhibit was placed, showing textiles and cases of jewelry in the alcoves, German art magazines on the table, pottery and porcelain in the high case. This room (E.C.)

of the exhibit were very favorable in the Newark, New York and out of town papers, and many persons, both craftsmen and amateurs, visited the Museum rooms in large numbers.

After leaving Newark the collection goes to the City Art Museum, St. Louis; the Chicago Art Institute; the John Herron Art Institute, Indianapolis; the Cincinnati Museum Association; the Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh; the National Arts Club, New York. The expense of the preparation, transportation and insurance of this exhibit is shared by the Museums showing it.

Circulars and other publications of the Museum have been issued as follows:

Annual Report 1910-1911.

List of Photographs shown in the Exhibition of Modern Photography, April 6-May 4, 1911. An artist and title list with a brief introduction.

Catalog of Paintings, Summer Exhibition, August and September 1911, lent by Messrs. Bamberger, Fuld, Scudder and Wright-Clark. Illustrated.

Catalog of Paintings by Childe Hassam, shown November 8-30, 1911. Contains a biographical note about the artist, a list of titles, and general notes of information about the Museum.

Newark Museum Association Bulletin, Vol. 2 No. 2. Modern German Applied Arts. Contains the story of the inception and object of this exhibition; also a note regarding the Disbrow Collections.

All bulletins are sent as soon as issued to members, museums, journals, local papers, to people interested in museums. The bulletin is published occasionally. Seven numbers have already appeared.

The Executive Committee has been authorized:

To spend on the exhibition of Applied Arts of Germany $1000, a portion of the same to be spent for the purchase of objects shown in the exhibit on the approval of the Committee on Purchases.

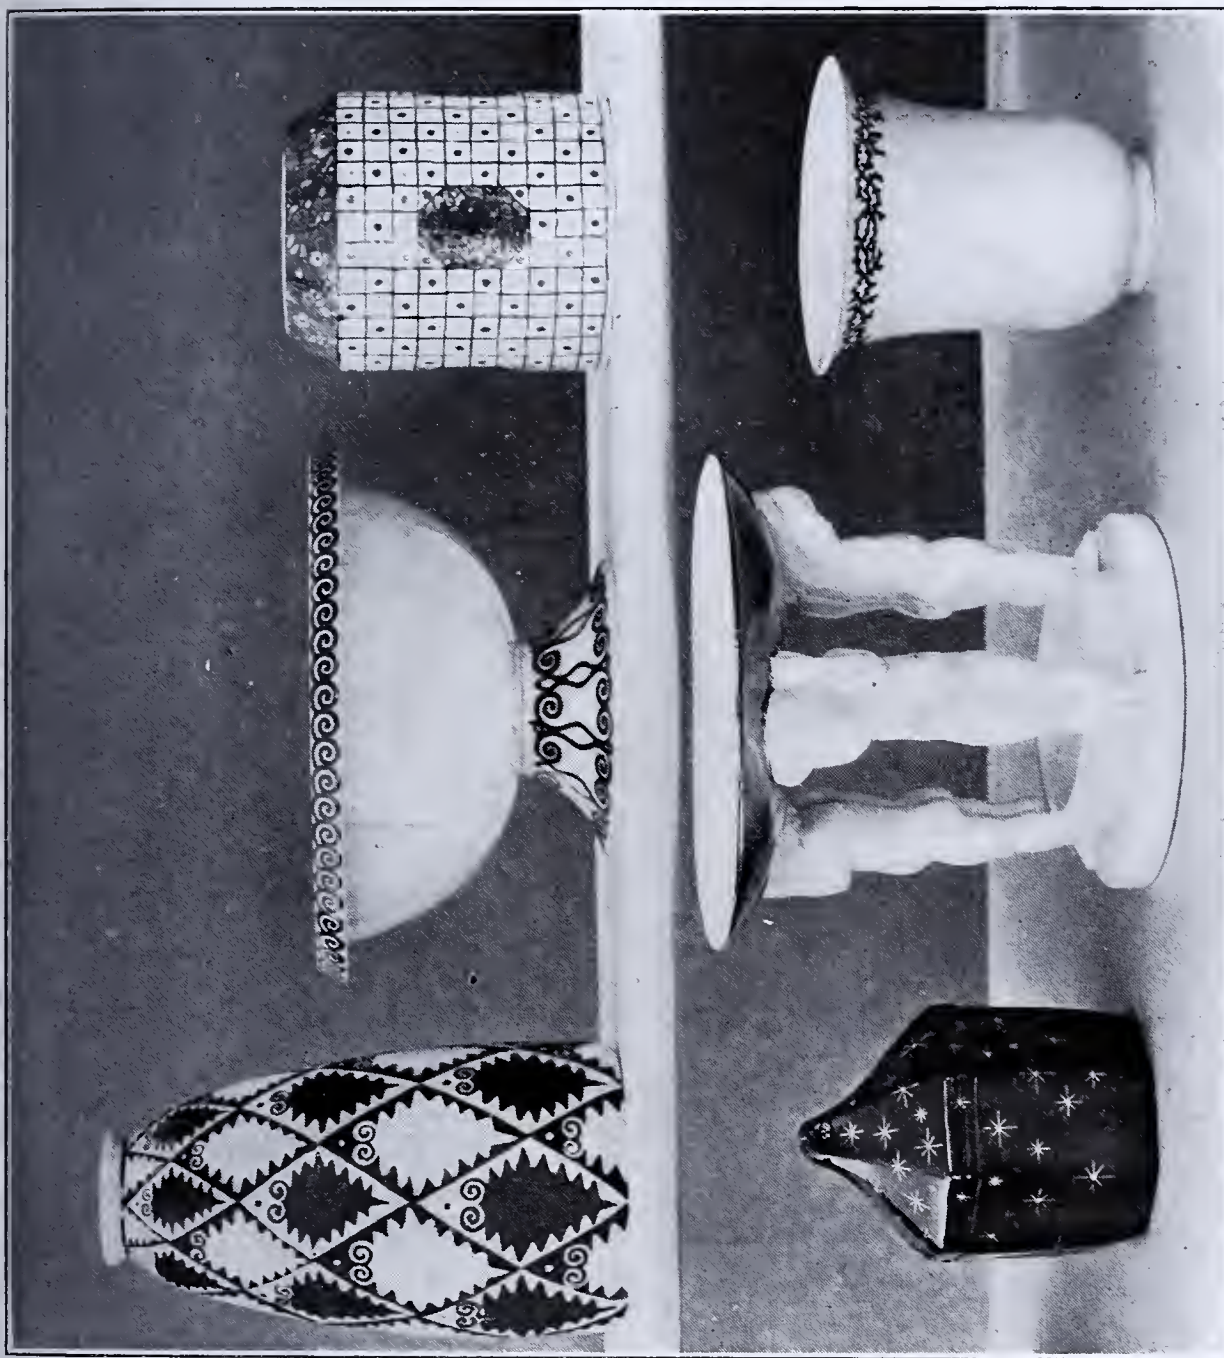

To take over the Disbrow Science Collections from the Public Library and expend in extending and installing it a sum not to exceed $4,500 during the next eighteen months.

To arrange for at least three exhibitions for the coming winter at a total expenditure approximating $2000, if money can be secured therefore by private subscription or from the City Council.

The Committee on Purchases has been authorized to spend and without conditions, in the acquisition of objects for the Association, such sums as it sees fit, up to a total not to exceed $2000.

The Secretary has been authorized to compile and print a catalog and general description of the Tibet Collection.

The Treasurer has been authorized to send to Dr. Shelton $100. to be expended by him in the purchase of Tibetan objects similar to those already acquired.

Pottery from Germany and Austria shown in the Exhibition of Modern Applied Arts of Germany.

Japanese Shrine, about 1780, made of black and gold lacquered wood and representing Arzen-Myo-o, the God of Love. The six hands contain objects symbolizing virtues to be obtained through supplication and meditation. From the Rockwell Collection. Property of the Museum.
